Are you a voter without a candidate?

Do the “Drill Now” war cries from the Republican Party scare you?

Are the Democratic Party candidates taking your vote for granted while they appeal to voters who don't care about the environment?

You have another choice; support Green candidates

Don't stay home on election day and let the major party politicians write you off as someone who was either too lazy or uncaring to vote.

Register and vote Green

Show them that you will support candidates who are committed to improving the environment. Let them know that you vote and that you can be won over if they start to produce real environmental results.

Send a message via the Green Party

Don't think that a vote for a Green Party candidate is wasted if they don't win. The major parties are forced to look at the Green Party vote totals and to think about why they didn't get your vote. As the number of Green votes increase they will start to try to find ways to win you over. They will no longer be able to take your vote for granted.

Make a statement.
